

American Indian and Multicultural Connection

Many American Indian songs told stories to preserve historical events. Music and dance were also used in ceremonial ways such as in a healing ceremony or an intertribal ceremony. Other songs were used to teach particular skills such as the Sneak Up Song and dance that taught hunting skills. Some songs used vocables alone or in combination with words such as the Delaware Gathering Song.